

We are publishers

Prior Knowledge

You created an eBook to celebrate achievements in Unit 1.4: We are publishers.

You researched a topic and presented information in Unit 2.4: We are safe researchers.

In Unit 3.5: We are co-authors, you collaborated on an eBook.

In Unit 5.4 We are web developers, you collaborated on a website.

Key Vocabulary:

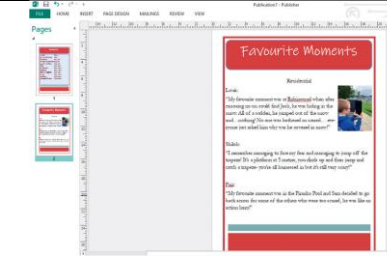

creative commons		licensing scheme where the creator of an original work allows others to use it without seeking further permission, subject to a number of agreed conditions	folder		a collection of files in a device or network file system
Desktop publishing (DTP)		software and hardware system designed to produce high quality print (or equivalent digital) media by users without experience in publishing or printing	image		picture, diagram, chart or photograph
eBook		a book made available in digital form	portable document format (PDF):		Adobe's open standard for digital versions of print media, supported across different software platforms and devices – typically includes support for commenting and other annotation
ePub		eBook format supported by Apple Books and Google Play Books	text		the written word

Key learning: How can we use computing to remember our time at St Veronica's?

Session 1: Thinking about a design for a yearbook

Who will be our audience when producing a school magazine?

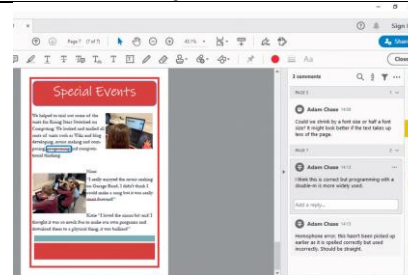

Session 4: Assembling the pages of the yearbook

What is a template?

Session 2: Sourcing and creating content for the yearbook

What is the difference between images and text?

Session 5: Marking up comments and corrections

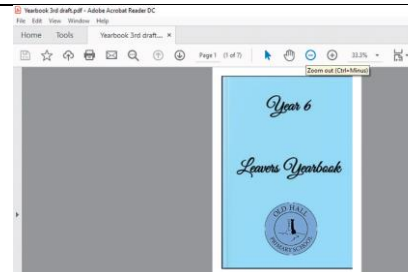

What is the advantage of the Portable Document Format (PDF)?

Session 3: Editing content for the yearbook

What can and can't be included in a print magazine?

Why do you use high resolution photographs in a publication?

Session 6: Finalising the yearbook before printing

Which publishing format can be used on tablets?

Key Applications (apps)

Next Steps

To apply your knowledge of e-publishing to a homework and a range of collaborative projects in High School.